attractive part of Paris than the quays which lie from Port Royal to Pont Neuf on the south bank of the river. Here, on the parapet of the wall which separates street from wharf (the latter is fifteen or twenty feet below the street) are boxes filled with second-hand books. Unless you are a known customer, you cannot enter the regular book shops of Paris and take down the volumes you desire to examine. Some of the most interesting of these shops are on a second floor, and a woman is generally the keeper. A spring bell announces your entrance, and she comes forward and in a surly tone challenges you with "What do you want?" If you cannot tell the book you wish and the price you are willing to pay, she will let you know bluntly enough that you are not wanted There are some shops on the ground floor which bear on the door, "Free admittance." Do not trust it any more than you would trust the "Walk in, Mr Fly!' seen on the door of a musical cafe, where as you know, the instant you appear a waiter pounces on you with "What shall I serve?" On the quays it is different. If you turn over the volumes from morning till night nobody will say anything to you. Do not judge the quay's wealth, however, by the afternoon's store They are richest in the morning. Book auctions commonly take place at night, and purchases are put into boxes before noon so that it is in the early hours of the day that book-hunters give chase. In the afternoon you see only their leavings, save the casual purchases made from student or literary man, whose diverge from his books has been decreed by hunger - Scribner's.

offer of a seventy thousand dollar check now when it would be so useful. On the contrary, he receives his wedded daughter at his luxurious home, and apparently sanctions her desertion of her impoverished husband.

The wife-wife does not seem the fitting word-meanwhile, desirous of wedding a foreign lord, seeks the annulment of her first marriage, on the ground among others, that she married under compulsion, although she had lived happily with her husband until three children had been born to them.

We should not think this young man would require much more experience of Central Marble Works the world to make him a firm believer in total depravity. One point at least is settled by the case: A check for seventy thousand dollars is worth more at one time than another, and it is the least likely to be offered as a present when it is most needed.

HAMSHER & MOSSER PUBLISHERS.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 17, 1880.

Qua thanks are due Hon. George H. Harlow, secretary of state, for valuable mficial documents.

Peoria Transcript of yesterday came out in a strong article opposing the nomination of Grant. It proclaims its belief, or rather says it knows, that Grant is not the choice of a large majority of the Republicans of Illinois.

Mas. Lorne, a prominent English lady new temperarily residing in Canada, was injured on Saturday by being run away with in a sleigh. Fortunate-Lorne, otherwise called the Marquis, ran away with her. If she had run away with some other man it would have been scandalous.

GEN. GRANT is eight years older than Senator Blainc.

THE STRONG GOVERNMENT IDEA. If we are now convinced of the existence in the United States of the same centralizing tendency, with the effects of which we are familiar in the old world, let us inquire as to its probable results here. How will it affect the form and workings of our governmental system? Evidently, it is going to bring the government and the citizen into closer relation with each other. The citizen begins to demand more than he has received heretofore. He says to the government: "You have the right, in case of insurrection or foreign war, to seize my property and force me into the army, where my life is subject to the terrible hazards of battle and disease. Now I insist that you shall do more for me in return than to coin my money and carry my letters. I want protection in my essential rights of citizenahip. Only once in two years do I have any voice in influencing the legislation of the country; only once in four years can I exert any control over its execu-tive policy. On these rare occasions, when I can put my hand on the government which can always put its hand on me, I demand that I shall be free from restraint and violence, and that the expression o, my will shall be guaranteed its due force and result." If he is told that he must look to his state for this protection and guaranty, he says: "This is illogical. I am not dealing with the state at these elections for congressmen the nation. From the nation I demand There will be no resisting this demand. The federal election laws will not be repealed. They will be strengthened and perfected, until the supervisory power of the national government over national elections is made much broader than it is now. The citizen will not stop with a demand for protection to himself and his ballot. He will go much further. He will say that he has the same interest in a fair election in another state as in his own, representative. He will therefore say government of Louisiana to insure such lections within her borders. He has no claim on that government, and no way to get at it. Yet he is wronged individually if, by the suppression of the vote of his party in a dozen parishes on Red River, a congressman is re-

The Next Cold Wave.

Vennor, the Canadian weather prophet, predicts another cold spell this month. He writes as follows: "The second cold period in February will reach us on the 22d, 23d, 24th and 25th days. This, it is probable, will be extremely cold along the valley of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, northern United States and to the Westward. February will certainly end cold. The second heavy snow storm of the month should—by my theory—come on us about the 15th, and this bids fair to be heavy, with drifts and fairly cold weather. We have yet to get our heav-* falls of the winter, and some of these are certain to extend through March. Up to the 15th the weather mould be moist."

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

EDITORS REHUBLICAN:-Allow me a little space in your columns that I may address a few words to liquor drinkers, in the hope of planting a germ of thought in the minds of those persons whose habits have not yet engendered the appetite which as surely as night succeeds unto day, succeeds continued indulgence in the vile compound which Robert Hall calls "liquid fire and dis-tilled damnation." I have no quarrel with the vender of the above article. He proclaims his object, which is to get money regardless of consequences. "The ends justify the means" motto. But it is timely and just that the drinker should now fully understand his business connection with the saloonkeeper. He should look to his accounts and learn his profits and losses. In other industries when customers find they are not receiving value for their money, they withdraw their patronage and are commended for so doing. What does the liquor drinker receive in return for his money? Not house and ly for her reputation her husband, Mr. home where he may be sheltered and cheered; not wholesome food, so necessary to man's physical strength; not clothing for comfort and adornment; not books for the culture of his mind and heart-no, no, none of these. God pity him: he only receives all that is expressed in the direct of all wordsmisery. In too many instances the individual who drinks suffers less than those who are allied to him by the ties of duty and affection. Through the assistance of "most obliging friends" he is supplied with potions which deaden his sensibilities, and render him oblivious to the horror of his surroundings, just as long as he has money. When that is gone, he is sent from the gilded saloon by its autocratic proprietor, who is too honorable (?) to sell liquor to drunkards, when they have no

The whisky advocates say the antilicense system inaugurates lawlessness. Did liquor dealers violate the laws which existed previous to the temperance movement? Did they not sell to drunkards and minors? Were not their drunkards and minors? haunts accessible to the "favored many" on Sunday? This matter should be looked into by their respectable supporters, who advise the high license system. We have a right to ask if saloon keepers are law abiding men, when combatting certain issues. Cambling is a lesser evil than drunkenness. I am told that gambling places abound in our city. Let us be as generous to the gambler as we are to the saloon keeper; give him license, and thus take upon ourselves a part of his crime, and at the same time lessen our taxes. Gambling does not steal away humanity. Gamblers are generally aesthetic in their taste, "mild mannered" and kind to those who are dependent upon them, and, to their praise, it is said they don't drink. I would not uphold any degree and for president; I am dealing with of vice, but am for equal rights, and if our taxes are to be reduced by licensing "infernal machines" for the destruction of our families-if that is the sole object, license all the paying vices, and relieve rich men of their terrible tax burden.

Some very good men advocate license, viewing the question from a stand which they occupied when drunkenness was not so general, and then some good persons are very stubborn; if they say the horse is higher than any other horse ever was, they will shut because the congressmen chosen in that I their eyes when you measure him. It state have just as much voice in mak- is better to cultivate judgment, and be ing laws for him to obey as his own governed by the "logic of events." Change is the companion of progress, that it is his personal right as a citizen and is a blessing when it brings im-that all elections of a national charace provement. The liquor question is not ter should be fair and honest, and that one of dollars and cents; it is one that all voters, wherever they live, should should strike the alarm in every househave the same freedom to express their hold. Who can say "None of my be-opinions and wishes with their ballots loved were sacrificed at the Temple of that he himself enjoys. If he lives in Bacchus." Let us return to the subjest of taxation. I assert that the poor man who pays three fourths of his hard earnings into the coffers of the salcon keeper, is the heaviest tax-payer in the land. Benevolent men should strive

THE AMERICAN DESERT.

Peoria Journal In the school geographies of thirty years ago, all that part of the country lying west of the Missouri river, and what now constitutes the state of Nebraska, and extending to the Rocky Mountains, was little known, and put down on the maps as the "Great American Desert." Since that time what wonders have been accomplished. The hitherto almost unexplored region, over which the Indian and buffalo roamed at will, has been opened up, and much of SUICIDE AT MATTOON. what was supposed to be a sterile, barren plain, has proven to be the garden spot of the United States. True there is much of that country which is not, and never will be, of any use as at present, on account of a lack of water. If this want can be overcome, and a supply of water obtained, the whole country will settle up with stalwart farmers, and the wilderness will be made to blossom like a rose. With this in view, Senator Hill, of Colorado, has introduced a bill in congress, praying for the digging of an experimental artesian well, at the expense of the government, and there is but little doubt of its passage by congress. The measure is of the utmost importance to the whole country. There are 900,000,000 acres embraced in these arid regions, including Arizona, Dakota, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Nevada, and portions of California, Kansas, Nebraska, Oregon, Washington Territory, Texas, and the Indian Territory. Not one per cent. of this territory has yet been sold by the United States, and it must remain unsold for years to come unless some means is found to supply it with water. Government surveys show that 200,000,000 acres of this tract are mountainous, where, even with abundance of water, agriculture would be impossible. An equal amount consists of lava beds, bad lands" without soil or vegetation, and desert plains of drifting sand, leaving an area of 500,000,000 acres of plain and valley land susceptible of high cultivation and wanting only water. Not to exceed three per cent. of this vast tract of land can be reclaimed by utilizing rivers and streams now available. The remainder of it furnishes a seant growth of grass, but so little of this that it is estimated that fifteen to twenty acres is required to furnish support for one head of cattle. This land, when irrigated is capable of producing thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, as has been proved by actual experiment. As the land is owned by the government, private parties will not invest the necessary means to sink those wells, but let the fact once be demonstrated that water underlies this vast plain, and the land will find a ready sale to men who will bore their own wells. Some of the ablest geologists of this country express the belief that flowing wells can be obtained in many localities on these vast plains, both east and west of the Rocky mountains. It is proposed to spend $50,000 in making the experiment, and this is a small amount in comparison with the benefits to be derived from the sale of lands, should the wells prove a success.

HORRORS.

DANGERS BY FLOOD.

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 16.—The citizens of Bainbridge, this county, were on yesterday startled by the discovery of a horrible crime that had been perpetrated in their midst, a man named Levi Lane, aged twenty-four years, having murdered his wife and one child, and consigned another child, an infant three months old, to death by starvation, and then committed suicide by taking poison. Levi Lane and his family, for two or three months past, occupied an almost untenantable shanty in the village of Bainbridge. As none of the family were seen by the neighbors since Monday last, and the house was locked, some uncasiness was felt, and on Saturday it was resolved by some of the citizens to break open the house and make an investigation. Ex-Sheriff Stiltz and several others went to the house, knecked at the door, both front and back, and receiving no answer, broke open the back door. entering the room a most horrible sight met the eyes of the visitors. Lying on a miserable bed were the dead bodies of the husband and wife and an infant child on the floor. Not far off lay a little girl about five years old, cold in death, and in a corner the only living member of the family, a little boy about his feet and legs frozen almost to the As the citizens entered this poor child said, in fearful, chattering tones, "Don't make a noise; pap is asleep, and if you wake him up he will whip me." This child, who was too young to realize the terrible calamity that had befallen it, received immediate attention, when it was discovered that noth of its legs were frozen almost to the knees, having turned entirely black. How they each met their death will probably never be proved, but appearances clearly indicate that the then committed suicide. The bodies of the mother and the cldest child were slightly decomposed, indicating, by the opinion of the examining physician that they were murdered on Monday night. The body of the wife had nothing on it but a chemise. Her neck was broken and the back part of herskull crushed in. The eldest girl's neck was also broken. The death of the three months old habe was caused by starvation. That it died a lingering death was shown by the handful of its mother's hair that it had pulled out in its agony. As the brute husband was seen alive on Thursday he must have taken the poison, which caused his death, on that day or the next. That the boy, who was found with his feet and legs frozen was spared the fate of his mother and sisters, is only to be accounted for by the fact that he was his father's favorite. Yesterday he was able to partake of no trade, but done odd jobs and spont most of his money for liquor. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 16 .- The Cumberland river is still rising, 250 families have been forced to move from their homes in the various depressions. The lumbermen of Nashville have suf-fered heavily. The river is nine feet higher than ever before, being eighty fect above low-water mark. All the streams in Upper Cumberland are reported higher than ever known, in consequence of a continuous rain for thirty-nourishing food, and the physician has some hopes of his recovery, though they are very slight. His legs will brobably have to be amputated to save the child. What induced Lane to com.

MATTOON, Feb., 6 .- The most shocking suicide ever known in this section occured here early this morning. Wm. Gilman, the self-murderer, was eighty years old, the father of several grown children, and has resided in the county fifty years. He has been suffering great distress of mind owing to the recent death of his wife and other domestic troubles. Last night when one of his sons came from church, he said, "Al, I wish you were out of this and then I would not care to go myself." morning while the family were at breakfast the aged father entered, with his coat and boots, as was his custom. Flourishing a razor, he said: "Boys of enlarged prostate gland, with irrata-bility of the neck of the bladder, which I cannot relieve with anything as well as Constitution Water. You want to see some fun. Be-fore he could be disarmed, he cut a long, deep gash across the left side of his neck, severing the jugular vein. He said: "It will soon be over, boys; you need not go after the doctor." and died in a few utes. The affair has caused great sorrow here. He was formerly EDS. I am not in the habit of stealing patent rights or infring-ing on any man who has a legal right to be claims himself to be the sole agent for the State of Illinois) asserts to the public that I um infringing on his rights, although acknowledging at first that there was no patent or them as he put them on windows in England years ago, certainly it would not do to let America get ahead of England. Bur as soon as I showed brains enough to get them up my self, there was a patent. That assertion can out too quick, for it would not tally with the above remark, so, modifying it a little, the ast report is that the New York firm, from whom he imports his letters, have an improve-ment on the same. Well, that may be, I do not deny it, for I do not know what the improvement is. I make them in the old style, a I made them 20 years ago while with Mr Richard Jones, Sen., although it did not pay us at that time to make a business of it. I do not claim to be the inventor, for I have seen hem years before in Baltimore, and Spring field, this state-not stepping across the va ters where, perhaps, I might trace its origin to the old Glypothek in Munich, in the shape of

LL accounts agree that there has been an unusual demand for cheaply made or shoth A boots or shoes. It is a very short-sighted policy to buy or sell such stuff. In using these goods you pay out twice as much money in a year for your boots and snoes, and you never bave a pair that fits, because manufacturers of the cheap grades give no attention to the fit of their work. We trust that people who buy shoddy work will turn over a new leaf in this mattheir work. Dramatic Recitals To-Night.

This evening the leading literary event of the season will take place at the opera house, on which occasion Mrs. Mattie Balch will give dramatic recitals in costumes. Read the following from the Warren Patriol:

Warren Patriot:

Those who listened to Mrs. Mattie Balch last night in her dramatic recitations enjoyed a rare treat. The hour passed only too rapidly, and when the entertainment was ended the audience, like Oliver Twist, wanted 'more.' Mrs. Balch is a true artist. Her different characters were sharp and distinct. It would be difficult, indeed, to say in what characterizations she excels most. She is so full, so complete in all—now irresistably funny, now deeply pathetic or dramatic. But best of all, she has only begun her career. There are still riper years and richer harvests.

ecclesiastical distinctions, and with a faith in God so mighty that shall disre gard even the orange and the green, that you put your shoulders together for the relief of famishing Ireland Merciful God' shall it be that with our barns and our store houses crowded with food we shall be heartless and un responsive? No, it shall not be For as this day I entwine the shamrock around the cross, I hear a voice louder than the groan of famishing Ireland a voice of tears and blood and sacrifice, exclaiming, "I was a hungered and ye gave Me meat " By the empty bread tray of the Irish cabin, by the exhausted sack of oatmeal, by the blasted harvest fields, hy the blanched cheeks of women and children crying for help, by the four hundred thousand graves of those who perished in the Irish famine of 1741, and by the vaster number of graves of those who perished in 1846, I implore you not only to be generous, but to be quick I gather up the plaint of helpless childhood all over Ireland, and the sobbing of mothers whose children are dying on their breasts because the fountains of life are dried up, and the groans of men who can fight back no longer the wolf from the cabin, and by the wailing of uncounted multitudes of the starvinggather them all up, and I intone them into one heartrending cry for help
